

Press Release June 6, 2008

The Chautauqua Multi-Use Organizing Committee Board of Directors is proud to announce the creation of their new web site. The web site address is www.cmusf.com and was created by I-Evolve Technology Services from Amherst, New York.

Designed to help promote the building of a new sports complex for our area, the site enhances information already listed on the group's blog, found at cmusf.blogspot.com. Included on the site are sections that list the history of the group, details about the 2005 Feasibility Study, prime site information, as well as a link to the group's model, the J.M. McDonald Sports Complex in Cortland.

You can view a list of the Board of Directors, send an e-mail to get more information or join the Board, make donations via PayPal and see postings of the various press releases relating to the project. Also available for viewing is an informational pamphlet, Corporation By-Laws, and a summary of the survey the group conducted in 2007.

In coming weeks the site will have copies of architectural drawings, a summary of the business plan, as well as updated information about the Fundraising Study being conducted by Dr. John Earshen and the Mattison Group.

The group encourages the public to explore the new web site at www.cmusf.com. Their next monthly meeting is on June 11 and anyone interested in becoming involved with this project should contact President, Don Horton at 640-7457 or dhorton625@roadrunner.com.
